

10th pass male nabbed from Juhapura for scamming US citizens

The city police have nabbed a man from Juhapura who, despite having only completed 10th grade, was scamming American citizens with his fluent English.

Sohil Parvez Rashid Parvez Shaikh, aged 27, employed a modus operandi wherein he communicated with Americans over the phone, offering assistance and loan services. Sohil operated a call center from his home between midnight and 5 am, engaging in conversations with approximately 30 individuals daily. By showcasing fake letters for loan approval from banks, Sohil used to receive payments in dollars through gift vouchers as commissions.
